Moonies in court for release

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Attorneys for five "Moonies" including John Hovard of Danville asked the state Court of Appeal on Tuesday to cite their parents for contempt for allegedly disobeying an order to keep deprogrammers away from them.

They also asked that the court's order issued Monday be modified to suspend the temporary conservatorships granted to the parents and to prevent 14 deprogrammers from contacting or communicating in any manner with the five young followers of the Rev. Sun Myung Moon.

Pending its determination in the case, the appellate court issued a stay of a March 24 San Francisco Superior Court order which allowed the parents to proceed with deprogramming of the Moonies, whose ages range from 21 to 25.

The stay enjoined using persons or organizations in an attempt to alter the religious beliefs of the petitioners and removing them from the court's jurisdiction.

The contempt application contends the stay order was "disseminated" to the conservators at 4:15 p.m. Monday as they waited at a motel with cars loaded and motors running.

It said that despite orders to the contrary, the deprogrammers left with the parents and the five children and have continued to attempt deprogramming activity.

An affidavit filed by attorney Paul M. Goorjian said he talked with three of the Unification Church members, Jacqueline Katz, Janice Kaplin and John Hovard Jr. on Tuesday and they told him the mouthpiece of the telephone in the room had been removed so they could not make any outgoing calls.

It said the only number by which he could contact his clients was that for a deprogrammer's room.

Goorjian said the three related that Joe Alexander Jr. a deprogrammer, had said they would be split up so they would not have contact with each other.

The other two church members covered in the order are Barbara Lael Underwood and Leslie Brown. Alan Seher, a vice president of the New Educational Development Systems, a Unification Church affiliate, said it was believed Miss Underwood and Miss Brown had been taken out of the county.

702 Santa Rita inmates strike over conditions

Present 6 demands

PLEASANTON — Seven hundred two sentenced inmates at Santa Rita Jail refused to work yesterday and gave prison officials a list of six demands for improved living conditions.

No violence or damage had occured since inmates began the work stoppage at 8:15 yesterday morning when the work call was issued, officials said. The list of grievances was the first indication of major inmate complaints, said Capt. Dennis Jeffrey.

The list of grievances is as follows:

- Sick call, currently between noon and 1:30 p.m., should be rescheduled to early morning.
- At 6:20 a.m., reveille is sounded, and a stand-up count is taken 10 minutes later. Inmates want the 6:30 count eliminated.
- The current shower room schedule causes too much crowding, prisoners claim, and should be changed to alleviate the problem.
- Mail is presently delivered to prisoners at 6 p.m. Inmates want that changed to a 4 p.m. mail call.
- Prisoners are complaining that the 1 p.m. Saturday inmate tally is disruptive of their afternoon activities, and want it moved to another, unspecified time.
- Inmates want an increase in the number of items at the prison store, including addition of hair care products for blacks and facial hair cosmetic items.

Capt. Jeffrey said no team of negotiators had approached him. He said some prisoners were willing to talk about the demands, while others considered them "non-negotiable."

Civilian workers are attempting to fill in for striking inmates on work details in the jail kitchen, bakery, machine shop, laundry and the prison farm.

Jeffrey said striking prisoners are subject to losing earned time credits — for each day a prisoner serves while in custody, he earns one day off his sentence for good behavior and one day off for work he performs at the jail.

Amador, Dublin students converge on district office

Hundreds of Amador and Dublin High School students, purportedly protesting unsettled and strike-threatened contract negotiations, walked out of class Tuesday morning, many winding up lounging on the grass and milling about the school district headquarters on Main Street in Pleasanton.

Dublin principal Bob Hagler said about 25 per cent of the student body or some 400 students left during second period. Some drove or took the bus to Pleasanton to join other Amador district students milling about outside district offices.

The walkout brought reactions from both administration and parents.

One Dublin student, claiming to represent the students massed outside, met with Superintendent Bruce Newlin for several minutes.

Flyers announcing an intention to walk out had been distributed at Dublin High in the past week, even though student representatives had met with school board and teacher reps in the past 10 days to learn more about the contract negotiations and possible strike.

A few parents at Dublin, irate over the walkout and alleged condoning comments of some teachers, confronted Hagler on campus and asked for explanations. They were permitted to see if their youngsters were in class.

With the annual recess for Easter, teachers and students in the Amador Valley Joint High School District have just five more days of classes before the teacher-set strike deadline day of Thursday, April 14.

This Friday is a work day for teachers and students will not be in class.

Maid of Pleasanton hopefuls

Maid of Pleasanton contestants, now numbering 18, will seek selection among the 10 finalists Thursday. Finals in the annual pageant are scheduled for Castlewood Country Club on May 29. Brief details on eight young women entering the contest shortly before the deadline last week, not previously reported, appear in today's Times. See Page 2.

Poor vet records studied

Defense Secretary Harold Brown authorized the armed services to upgrade more than 432,000 undesirable and general discharges given for Vietnam War desertion, drug abuse and other causes.

Each case will be considered on its own merits, unlike President Carter's blanket pardon of thousands of draft evaders.

Brown, former head of the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory, announced the plan would require each man to apply for reconsideration under the new program. Military authorities said each serviceman's background would be considered during the reevaluation.

Carter has approved the Pentagon's plans which would mark the second stage of his effort to heal the divisiveness growing out of the Vietnam War.

Area CC planners to form

A group of central and south Contra Costa County citizens will help county supervisors Eric Hasseltine and Robert Schroder devise area planning commissions.

The two supervisors, working under authority of the full board of supervisors are to come up with a recommendation on what form area planning commissions for unincorporated parts of the county should take.

Nine people from the San Ramon Valley and the Lafayette-Orinda Moraga areas will meet privately with the two supervisors to discuss the area planning commissions.

Water kits here

Bob Tiecke, manager of Cal Water Company, announced his expected shipment of water saving kits has arrived. Anyone wanting one can pick up a free kit at the Cal Water offices, 195 So. N St., Livermore, weekdays 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The kits include two toilet displacement bottles, shower flow restrictors and non - toxic dye tablets which reveal toilet leaks.

Students helped in arson arrest

LIVERMORE — Information by students led to the arrest of two students on suspicion of arson following the investigation of two recent school fires, the fire department announced.

A 15-year-old Granada High School student was arrested Monday on suspicion the youth started a fire that destroyed a portable classroom and damaged a nearby classroom building.

Damage in that fire was estimated at $18,000.

Fire Prevention Bureau Investigator D.G. "Doc" O'Connor conducted a 10-day investigation that led to the youth's arrest. O'Connor said that information provided by students, which surfaced after the school district offered a reward for relevant tips on the fire, was a key factor in the arrest.

A Junction Avenue School student had been arrested last week following a fire in a restroom at the school that caused $200 damage Feb. 24.

You nixed it then, so look again

DUBLIN — It may seem like "deja vu" — the feeling you've seen it all before — when Valley elected officials select a sewage disposal method tonight.

By all indications, the Boehmer Summit route, a 22-mile line of 30-inch pipe, will be chosen as the final solution to end the Valley's sewage problems and remove the building ban in effect since Dec. 21.

The ban was imposed because the Valley dumps its waste into Alameda Creek, where it flows into the underground watertable of Fremont and fouls its source of fresh water.

A November election will probably be held to ask voters if they want to finance the project with a 20-year revenue bond, or pay-as-you-go financing for the life of the project (about 18 months). Government grants would pay 87.5 per cent of project costs.

Last November, voters defeated essentially the same measure, 55 to 45 per cent. The difference — if selected, this year's project is about 20 per cent smaller and costs about $10 million more than the last one.

Both Livermore and Valley Community Services District councils voted for the Boehmer Summit route Monday night and indicated a preference for a November election. Pleasanton was the sole community in the last election to favor the project by its votes, and leaders there have said that gives them a mandate to again offer the measure.

As it was before, the Boehmer Summit route was found to be the most "cost - effective" plan by consulting engineers, CH2M Hill of San Francisco. "Cost - effective" is government lingo for the cheapest project that is easy to implement and has the least impact on affected areas.

Mori and Demo mates rate 'zero' by ag group

Assemblyman Floyd Mori of Pleasanton was one of 28 Democrats with zero ratings from the California Women for Agriculture in their summary of the state legislature.

The agriculture group gave the scores for 1975-76 votes on 10 bills, including the Coastal Protection Act, legislation extending unemployment insurance to farm workers and a bill providing funds for the Agricultural Labor Relations Board. It opposed all three of those measures.

Fifteen Republicans received perfect scores of 100 from the organization.

California Women for Agriculture, associated with grower intersts, released its "Worm Watchers Index" of legislators Tuesday.

Irked students stage walkout

Amador teacher unit negotiator Gary Poulos was to have met with Carl Krause, assistant superintendent for personnel, in a preliminary to hoped-for full resumption of negotiations.

There was no report by late yesterday as to the outcome of any such meeting.

Dave Woolworth, teacher unit president, said both the rep council and California Teachers Association rep Jim Sutton were also slated to meet with teacher unit leaders.

In the Pleasanton district, an open house at Alisal School apparently went off without disruption. Earlier, unsubstantiated reports hinted that teachers might express their displeasure over the school board's actions last Thursday night at a general meeting before the open house.

The bulk of open houses are scheduled after Easter vacation.

The Pleasanton board will meet this Friday at noon to swear in three new members and elect new officers.

Valley seniors tell needs

LIVERMORE — County officials were here yesterday to take a barometer reading of the needs of senior citizens in the Valley.

The Workshop on Aging, held at the Veterans Memorial Building, was called a "brainstorming session" by Rev. Robert Vogt of Pleasanton, chairman of the county advisory commission on aging.

He called for participants to share their ideas, including transportation, health care, home care, legal services and housing needs.

The audience of approximately 35 people included senior citizens and people who work on various Valley programs designed to help meet their needs.

Barbara Hempill of Livermore city hall told participants of negotiations to bring a new private taxi company to her city and said the proposed multi service center may have kitchen facilities which could be used for a meals on wheels program for the elderly.

Jerry Case, administrator for Pleasanton Gardens, noted the need for more "independent living situations" where older people are well enough to live by themselves without constant medical attention.

He said the meals programs are needed, as well as people to assist the elderly who want to live independently.

Communications between elderly people and the rest of the community were stressed, with talk centering around various ideas to call senior citizens on a daily basis to find out if anything was wrong with the older people.

Betty Stallings, of Valley Volunteer Bureau, suggested a "dial - a - friend" buddy system where people would have the time to talk with the elderly, instead of a system of spot checking.

Dorothy Svets of LARPD said a request for two full time home health aides is in the works.

Livermore withdraws from joint agency

LIVERMORE — This city is pulling out of the Congress of Valley Agencies.

City council voted 3-1 Monday to withdraw from the COVA joint powers agreement as of June 30. Mayor Helen Tirsell was the lone dissenter. Councilman Glen Dahlbacka was absent.

"I'd like to see it die a natural death," said Councilman Dale Turner, who told other council members he has seen "no real benefit in COVA since I've been on it."

After talks with county supervisor Valerie Raymond, said Turner, he would like to see the joint valley agency brought back only for specific study topics, such as transportation.

Any such revival would be at a staff study level, he added, because of pressing schedules of various elected officials sent to COVA meetings by the valley agencies.

In other action, the council:

— rejected a sewer hookup request from Walnut Creek realtor J. N. Smith who said a purchaser wants to build a house and barn at 2642 Las Positas Road to raise horses.

— received an invitation from American Taxpayers Union President Jerry Wilverding to discuss the pipeline issue at an April 21 meeting.

— agreed to accept Zone 7 input when the city acts on septic tank requests.

— Voted to exercise only height and location controls on mailboxes, leaving design and installation up to the individual homeowner. "Some people's taste in mailboxes may not be what we like," said Mayor Helen Tirsell, "but if they want to paint it purple, that's up to them."

— approved findings for the city's security ordinance to impose more stringent building requirements to prevent unlawful entries in private homes. The findings note Livermore's relative isolation from areas of dense and high population which make the city "an attractive target for criminals who cannot or do not desire to operate in areas of greater exposure or risk." Insufficient police protection was also cited.

Help for fledgling pet zoo

PLEASANTON — Mary Mahalak is impressed by the generosity of local merchants as she collects things for the new petting zoo which will grace the premises at the Buenas Vidas Youth Ranch.

Mahalak, a volunteer at the youth ranch, called on merchants Monday after hearing about Beth Shattuck's desire to start a petting zoo at the ranch. Beth lives at the ranch with her parents, who staff Buenas Vidas.

On her tour around town, Mahalak collected 15 feet of chicken wire from Kolln's Hardware, three racoons and glass tanks for reptile cages from Pipers' Pets, two black furry bunny rabbits from Something's Fishy, the promise of two more rabbits from Pleasanton Pet Shop, and tank screening from Pleasanton Glass.

Pipers' Pets threw in an extra added attraction: when their donated animals have babies, they will buy back the litter from the youth ranch, thus giving the ranch a little cash donation from time to time. "This is the first step toward a real development of a petting zoo, not only for the ranch, but for the community, too. Many small children from the community can come and use it," said Mahalak. The top budget priorities at the youth ranch are food and clothing, so the petting zoo obviously will have to be funded from local donations, said Mahalak. Any citizen who wants to donate a suitable pet or their various accoutrements, can call Mahalak at 846-0499. Free pickup and delivery.

EIR cost precludes rezoning

PLEASANTON — The great expense of doing an environmental impact report on a 51 acre parcel convinced the city council to withdraw its application to rezone the property Monday night.

Technically the "rezoning" proposed was a "prezoning" because the land is still unincorporated territory, but the city was urged by Planning Director Robert Harris to make the change from sand and gravel designation on the general plan to residential housing of a medium denisity, around five to eight units per acre.

At the public hearing Monday night, citizen Chuck Seymour wondered why the city would want to add another 256 units to its future development plan when it is looking for ways of cutting existing densities to meet federal growth standards.

Council members felt that the impact of the housing on the community would be great enough to warrant an EIR. However, that would cost up to $10,000 worth of staff time, so why not just forget the whole thing, they said.

The parcel, known as the Thorp property, is near Mohr Avenue and is beyond the city's urbanization line projected for the next 20 years. The land's designation should have been changed in the 1974 review of the general plan, said Planning Director Robert Harris, but it was overlooked then and the staff was trying to make up for that oversight Monday night.

The land originally was intended for gravel harvesting like the Kaiser property next to it, but there is such a deep dirt cap on top of it that gravel extraction probably won't be a good economic use of the land, said Harris.

City chooses route for waste disposal

LIVERMORE — City council Monday decided a pipeline over Boehmer Pass is the most economical route to get rid of the Valley's effluent.

That decision goes with Livermore's delegates — Helen Tirsell and Marshall Kamena — to tonight's meeting of the Livermore Amador Valley Water Management Agency which must decide the route to take.

Most of the evening's discussion included a close second choice for a pipeline going up to Suisun Bay. However, costs of acquiring an eight foot by 23 mile pipeline corridor along the Southern Pacific railroad right of way were deemed too expensive at $3.5 million.

Right of way land acquisition for the Boehmer Pass route is estimated at $500,000.

Council also expressed concern that discharge into Suisun Bay would be a poor ecological choice because of salt water incursion.

When Councilman John Staley raised questions about energy to pump the effluent over Boehmer, Robert Harding of engineering consultant firm CH2M Hill said only 2½ per cent of the annual costs would be used for energy.

Ernie Bodner, financial consultant, told council of 12 funding options involving Boehmer, Suisun and a Niles Canyon route.

In each case, choices were between funding with no bonds, funding with minimum bond sales and a service charge to customers for cash flow needs, and a maximum bond sales with minimum service charge increases.

He also discussed costs of alternative uses of the pipeline, ranging from nominal reuse of discharge water and export of the rest, to reuse of wastewater storage and demineralize water with lowest export.

A plan to have nominal reuse of effluent with export of the rest over Boehmer, said Bodner, would cost the average dwelling unit in the Valley $9.14 a month for the first 26 months of construction, if on a pay - as - you - go cash basis.

The same plan for a Suisun pipeline would be $43.86, he said, but possible reduction of land acquisition costs to $1 million would reduce that figure to 12.86 per month.

Water unit eyes quiz on pipeline vote

If Valley voters had understood Measure U, the sewage disposal project defeated in November's general elections, "there is a good chance" it would have passed, a voter survey shows.

Only 7 per cent of the 302 Valley voters polled said they were "very familiar" with the ballot measure, while 63 per cent said they were "not too familiar" with or never heard of the issue.

More than two-thirds of those polled said they were aware of the federal and state mandates that require the project be built, but only 6 per cent of those voting "yes" listed the mandate as the reason for their affirmative vote.

The survey, which will be made public tonight when the Livermore - Amador Valley Water Management Agency (LAVWMA) Board chooses a final disposal method, was conducted by Corey, Canapary and Galanis, a San Francisco marketing research firm.

The firm interviewed 302 persons by telephone from March 2 to March 8 to determine why voters rejected the measure. Persons were selected by random from voter registration rolls.

Those voting against Measure U cited the following reasons, in order: Too expensive; poor engineering/costs not realistic; should reclaim the water; should not pump water to the Bay; would raise my sewer service charges/cost me money.

Proponents of the measure gave the following reasons for voting to approve the revenue bond ballot measure: Ecological reasons/stop water pollution; just need it; need it for growth; have to act now; good plan/reasonable approach/lot of study went into it.

The current sewage crisis, which led to issuance of a cease and desist order against Livermore and the Valley Community Services District banning any additional sewer connections, was listed as sixth among "major problems facing the area." In order, the ten major problems are viewed as: Schools/school system/school board; taxes; water shortage/drought; restrictions on growth/building/no growth policies; too many people/too crowded; sewer situation/disposal problem; crime/violence/lack of police protection; smog/air pollution; permissiveness/teen crime/juveniles; and cost of living/inflation.

Forty-five per cent of voters did not know that state and federal grants would pay 87.5 per cent of project costs. When informed of the subsidy, 55 per cent said they either "might have voted yes" or did not know how they would have voted.

The firm says that "If the voters had fully understood the facts and implications of Measure U, there is a good chance the wastewater export system ballot measure would have passed in November." The report recommends that if another measure is offered, it stress "specific plans for reclamation of the wastewater for local use."

While warning that a survey in March might not reflect voter attitudes next November, the firm states: "It is our opinion that the voters will accept the pipeline as long as a sufficient reclamation program is included in the proposal."

Of those responding to the poll, 24 per cent said they voted against the measure, 21 per cent voted for it — and 28 per cent forgot how they voted.

Sewage solution due tonight

Other proposals are considered too costly or difficult to implement. And since the Boehmer Summit passage was selected once before, added familiarity plus the great amount of engineering work already done makes the project attractive.

A 22-mile pipeline down Niles Canyon, estimated to cost $50.2 million, would be difficult to construct due to the terrain. CalTrans officials have said no material could be stored there awaiting its installation due to the potential traffic disruption on Highway 84 and possible ecological damage to the nearby creek.

The other main alternative, a 31-mile pipeline to Suisun Bay, would cost $43.7 million. But Southern Pacific has said it wants $3.5 million for right-of-way costs, which would have to be paid for entirely by local funds, and a high (and costly) level of treatment of sewage might be needed before it could be dumped into Suisun Bay.

Complaints against the Boehmer Summit project hinge on two facts — it will incur high energy costs due to the 530-foot pumping elevation, and we would be exporting a valuable resource despite threats of a continuing drought.

Officials are attempting to secure a state grant to study reclamation possibilities in the Valley. If approved, the study could begin as soon as the summer and would last several months. Grants awarded after the study could lead to a 50 per cent reclamation of Valley wastewater while using the pipeline to pump out wastes from the reclamation/treatment process.

The project's sponsoring agency, the Livermore - Amador Valley Water Management Agency (LAVWMA), is composed of six members — two representatives each from Livermore (Mayor Helen Tirsell and Councilman Dale Turner), Pleasanton (Mayor Robert Philcox, chairman, and Councilman Ken Mercer), and VCSD (President Chuck Ladner and Director Lila Euler).

Pleasanton approves election by mail

PLEASANTON — The city will vote by mail for the first time in its history May 31, the city council decided unanimously Monday night.

There will be only one question before the voters: should there be a 29 cent tax override to increase the amount of fire and police personnel.

Mayor Robert Philcox and Council Member Frank Brandes were a little leery about the mail ballot since previous experiments have involved 600 or 800 voters in Monterey County in a special taxing district. Pleasanton has 12,000 registered voters.

But the pair went along with the others who convinced them that there are adequate fraud safeguards as well as savings of $8,000 over the cost of a regular election and a predicted voter participation that may be as high as 60 per cent. Normally a special election on a tax matter gets 20 or 30 per cent participation in most municipalities.

With publicity from the media and the fact it is the first election locally of its kind, voter participation should be very high, said Council Member Ken Mercer.

Extraordinaire!

Leave it to the Amador-Livermore Valley Historical Society to execute a fundraising event of refinement and charm! "Table Settings Extraordinaire" was just such an event, and the 300 visitors to the Springtown Center no doubt found it a delightful experience.

The most striking sight upon entering the exhibit of table settings entered in competition was "Oriental Elegance," creation of Gretta Brittsan and Evelyn Moller. No touch had been forgotten — hand-painted screen depicting the four seasons, and an exquisite set of antique Japanese Amori china contributed by Mrs. Hugh Porter. It was judged "Most Elegant" by panelists Florence Quillen, Ellen Olson and Connie Duke.

Second place in that category was taken by Edna Hagemann with "Pink Elegance," a delicate setting of Haviland china circa 1880. "Springtime" by Ferne Graves and Ethel Shaw was given honorable mention.

"Most Interesting" entry was made by the Alameda County CowBelles, with a rustic setting described in the program as "early junk." A whimsical spring setting, "Easter Brunch with Mrs. Piggy Winkle" by Jan Bird and Gale Wilson, was honorably mentioned.

"Most Original" table was set by Cleo Seamans, whose centerpiece of freesia filled the room with a heady fragrance. "Cherub's Workshop" featured 1875 German china, silver cherubs holding aloft napkins and tumblers, and an incredible white porcelain epergne of the same era. The CowBelles' entry was judged second in that category, and Mulberry Branch's country French table was honorably mentioned.

Chairman for the event was Genevieve Fraser.

Oriental setting by Gretta Brittsan and Evelyn Moller captured a blue ribbon.

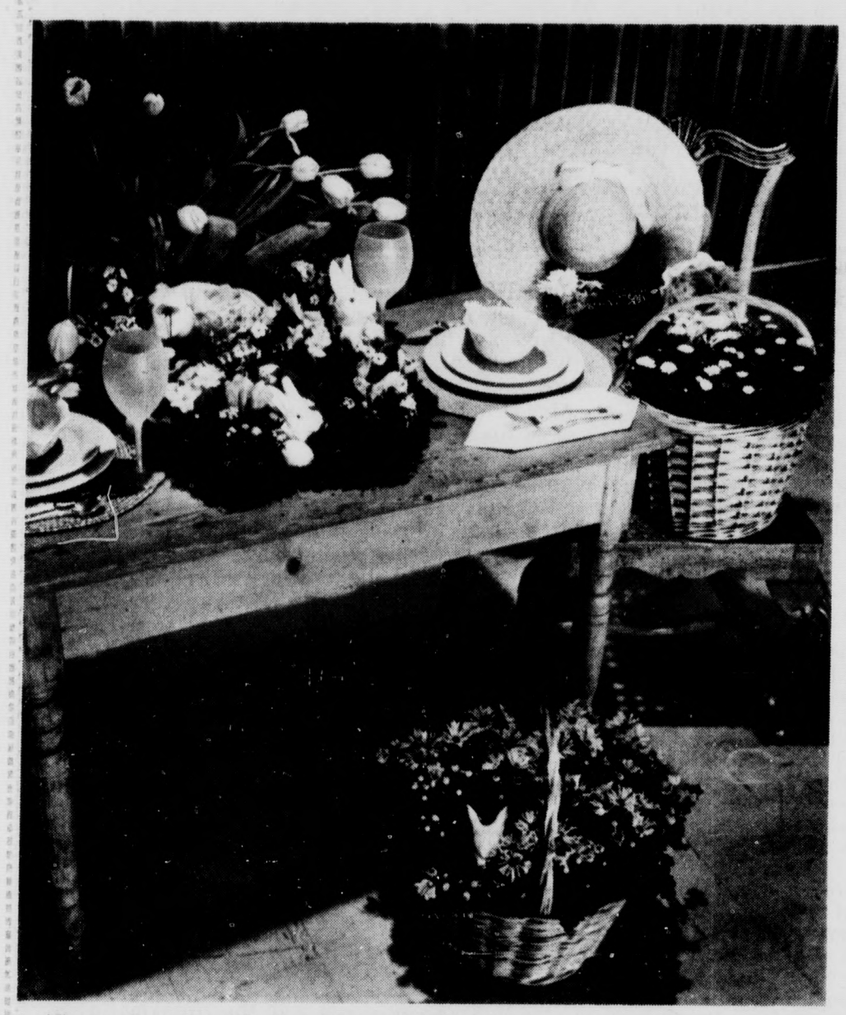
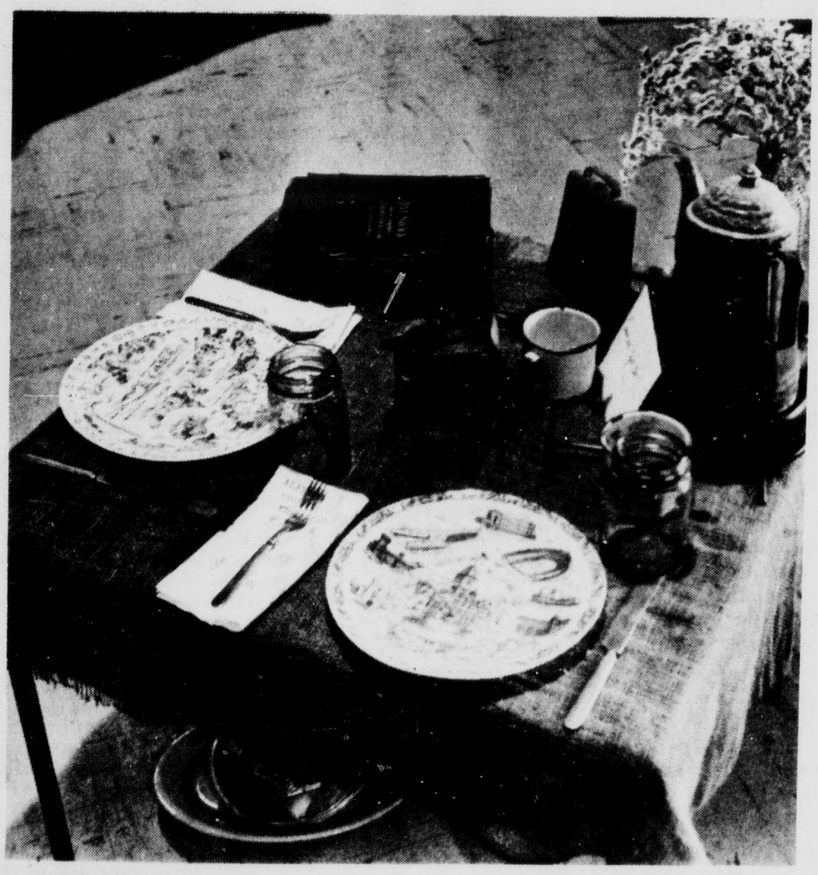
A Strauss waltz would be the perfect complement for Cleo Seaman's setting of German china from the 1870's. Cherub's play on plates, tumblers, spoons and napkins holders.



'Easter Brunch with Mrs. Piggy Winkle' by Jan Bird and Gale Wilson lifted spirits with spring theme.



'Come and Get It' was the theme of the CowBelles unique setting out of early California.

Study reveals the face of adoption is changing

An overwhelming majority of parents who have given up children for adoption and couples who have adopted agree that an adopted person who has reached adulthood has the right to his own original birth certificate, according to the research study.

A higher percentage of birth parents and adoptive parents in the study believed that the adult adoptee (an adopted person who has reached the age of 18) has a right to reunion with his birth parents, with 29 per cent of the birth parents agreeing to that right even without their consent.

The Children's Home Society undertook its study of attitudes with respect to sealed adoption records because so little information has been accumulated about the views and feelings of the three groups of people who would be directly affected by any changes in present law.

In April 1976, Children's Home Society of California published and distributed "The Changing Face of Adoption," a magazine devoted to the many issues that surround the question of what rights, if any, adult adoptees have to information that was "sealed" by law when their adoption was approved by the court.

Today single copies of the research report are still available by writing to the public relations department of CHS, 3100 West Adams Blvd., Los Angeles, CA 90018.

In addition to focusing on the question of "rights," the CHS magazine addresses the ramifications of these issues for each of the three groups in the adoption triangle by including questionnaires answered by adult adoptees, birth parents and adoptive parents.

Some of the startling facts that emerged from the responses — and many of them were signed — included the belief of 63 per cent of the birth parents, who felt they had made the right decision to relinquish the child; 26.4 per cent felt they had made the wrong decision.

Half of the adult adoptees who responded expressed dissatisfaction with the information they had about their birth parents, just one of their grievances.

NEWS ITEM

Alameda County is undertaking more stopgap measures that would "permit truck traffic to flow more freely along Stanley Boulevard while providing also for access to the gravel pits with minimum disturbance of other vehicular traffic."

First phase of the work is expected to start in 1977, but the entire project will take several years. Motorists are advised to be on the alert before, during and long after the Stanley face-lifting is completed.

Gulliver and Lilliput are in charge of construction.

Poor Stanley

In years past it was known as "Livermore - Pleasanton Road," and if the title wasn't poetic, it at least set forth the importance of that one route tieing together the Valley's only two urban centers.

It was re - christened "Stanley-Boulevard" in memory of Supervisor Chester Stanley, a Livermore rancher who represented the east and south county areas on the board for almost 16 years. In those 16 years, Chet Stanley managed to do a little of this - and - that to the uncertain road, like taking out most of the blind spots.

Supervisor John Murphy, in his 18 years of servitude on that same county board, added a touch here - and - there to "Stanley Boulevard." But the increased traffic — reflecting a ten - fold increase in the population of those two cities over the two decades — was more than enough to offset any small changes by the county's road department.

Now we are into a third decade, and the public servitude of a third Valley representative on that county board of supervisors. And, as in the past, there is talk of doing this - and - that with the troubled two - lane route which still provides the only link between two cities.

But even after they widen poor old Stanley to four lanes — taking most of those giant trees in the process — the increase in ravel truck traffic and in vehicular access to Shadow Cluffs Park will, of themselves, more than eat up those extra traffic lanes and turnouts.

What would really make sense is to provide direct access from those gravel pits and from Shadow Cliffs Park north to Interstate 580. That would relieve Stanley of much of its burden; that would make safer city streets in Livermore and Pleasanton. But that isn't going to happen, because it is too logical.

And so they will keep fussing with Stanley Boulevard, another lane, another supervisor, another decade. Drive carefully, and pray.

You're rich!

There is a great deal of political talk these days about "getting tax relief for poor people by making the rich pay a larger share."

You will be pleased to know that — with your new tract home, 3.2 kids and two working spouses — YOU are rich!

Never mind that the $20,000 household income you enjoy today is far less enjoyable than the $14,000 you grossed before inflation; and forget for the moment that your last two job promotions actually left you with less purchasing power — after taxes.

It is those inflated dollars which pushed you into that higher tax bracket. So your government takes a larger slice of an income that is in truth already somewhat less. It's where you fit on the tax scale that really counts; not where you stand with your creditors.

Some recent information tells us that from 25 to 40 percent of everything you earn is actually spent on taxes ... gasoline taxes, sales taxes, federal and state and county taxes. In 1946 the "typical" American wage earner labored from Jan. 1 to Feb. 28, with all that income going to taxes. In 1956 Mr. Typical had to work until March 15 to pay all his taxes. Last year they moved that date back to May 1, the day on which you stop working for government, start working for yourself and your family.

In all this talk of "property tax relief" there is accompanying promise of "a local income tax to be piggbacked onto the state income tax in order to allow local government to make up the revenue lost when those property taxes were lowered in the first place." Wow!

What it all figures out to is this: They're going to take a little less here, but quite a bit more off of there. And "there" is where you're at, you rich suburban son - of - a - gun.

Not that anyone's complaining. But it's just nice to know where you and your government stand these days.

Hindsight/Foresight

Organized crime

How deep is organized crime into drug traffic and supposedly legitimate businesses in the western states?

That question and related ones are being explored by a newspaper group called "Investigative Reporters and Editors" (IRE) and based in Tucson, Arizona.

We had a chance to catch up on the series and learn some more details during a brief visit in Phoenix and environs over the past weekend.

The series has captured the attention of the public at large and substantiated links between underworld figures, various businesses and high-ranking elected officials.

The west is in fact "the new frontier" for organized crime, as most infamously represented by the Mafia.

There are now documented histories of sophisticated drug trafficking between points in Mexico and the southwestern United States.

It is interesting to note that as these schemes are discovered, the hue and cry for fewer restrictions on the use of marijuana (and now heroin) are voiced by certain segments of society . . . . not excluding some of our elected representatives.

This writer believes there should be no more lessening of so - called restrictions, particularly as they concern heroin or cocaine.

There are concerted efforts being made to make the use of marijuana almost totally free of sanctions.

While those efforts are not necessarily based in the southwest or Mexico (In fact, most of the voiceferous potheads may be found right here in the San Francisco Bay Area), it is obvious that organized crime is more-and-more moving into this field — most recently in Arizona and now, quite possibly, in New Mexico.

Trafficking in drugs is big volume business.

Proponents of less or no restrictions will contend that if you take the profit angle out, the vice will be removed.

This has never been proven in part or in whole.

What we have found, though, is that ANYTHING with a huge potential profit, legal or illegal, will lure organized crime.

Those supporting lesser restrictions on the illegal weed, and then heroin, understand that where there is lax enforcement and/or weak laws, illegal activities flourish.

This is partly the case in Arizona.

The situation in our neighbor state has now gone far beyond the purposeful killing of an investigative news reporter (Don Bolles) to touch the Goldwater family, business and elected officials.

And it's spreading.

Classroom peace

Editor, The Times:

I'm confused! Recently I read that the AVSEA teachers had agreed to accept the Board's offer of limited binding arbitration and a four per cent cost of living increase. These have been the two major issues holding up a contract settlement, I have thought. In return, the teachers asked for some actions by the Board that didn't seem unreasonable but rather true to the give and take process that is a necessary part of collective bargaining. The Board president reportedly answered, "We will not buy peace at any price."

I see the teachers compromising considerably from their stand; I don't see a legitimate reason for inaction and/or refusal by the Board. As yet I read nothing about a contract resolution, and truly wonder where we are, or where we're headed.

There is a scriptural admonition to "not provoke...to wrath." In light of all the above it seems this could be aptly applied to the Board at this time. I hope I'm wrong in my impression, yet I do not like what I comprehend. All of us, irrespective of titles, are human beings with pluses and minuses. This endless standoff can be resolved now. The issues have been settled. Forget, and we must, the frailities, hurts and struggles of the past. Sign the contract!

round the town

That survey by Ann Landers — the one to which some 60,000 married people responded and almost half of them indicating they would not have chosen their present spouse, if given another chance — has had a certain amount of impact, in the kitchens across America.

We take you now to the morning breakfast scene where Lovey and Dovey Delightful are just finishing up the boiled eggs and toast that Mrs. Delightful has been fixing for their breakfast for the past 38 years.

"How were the eggs?" Mrs. D. asks, casually.

"Okeh I guess," Mr. D. replies. "'Bout the same as they always are. Toast too."

"I only fix softboiled eggs every morning because that's what you always said you liked," Mrs. D. says.

"I know, that's what you always say I always said," he observes, flipping to the morning sports page, noisily.

"If you don't like softboiled eggs and toast, all you had to do was say something during these past 38 years. I'd hate to think I've been feeding you a breakfast all these years that you never really liked."

"Did I say I didn't like softboiled eggs and toast?" Mr. D. notes. "If I ate two blessed eggs and that blessed toast every single morning for 38 years, you must admit I either like the menu, or else I must be some kind of nut!"

"Are you?" she asks.

"Are I what?" he asks.

"Some kind of nut," she says. "I mean it really would take some kind of nut to eat two softboiled eggs and toast every single morning for 38 years when all the time he was wanting French toast and bacon, now wouldn't it?"

Mr. D. shuffles through to the comic page, obviously desirous of dropping the subject of eggs.

"It is always amazing to me how some people will go through life doing one thing, when all the time they would have preferred something else," Mrs. D. says. "I remember Hazel Horsefeathers telling me how Herbert Horsefeathers — that's her husband, Herbert Horsefeathers — bought her a potted plant for every single birthday, wedding anniversary, Valentine's Day and any other occasion worth remembering."

"That's nice," Mr. D. says, indifferently.

"But Hazel Horsefeathers HATES potted plants," Mrs. D. exclaims. "Always has, always will. But she's got a housefull of potted plants, not one of which she likes."

"It seems terribly stupid to me for a woman to keep accepting potted plants as gifts from her husband on every social occasion when all of the time she knows she hates potted plants," Mr. D. observes, firmly.

"That's just the point," Mrs. D. says. "And furthermore, Mr. Horsefeathers just last week admitted to Mrs. Horsefeathers that he never has liked potted plants either. He just kept buying them because she kept accepting them."

"It all seems like a terrible waste of money, and potted plants," Mr. D. remarks. "I cannot believe two intelligent people could not have discovered their mistake long before this."

Mrs. D. starts clearing the table and washing up, just as she has done every morning for 38 years.

"I always thought the Horsefeathers were happily married ... a well - matched couple, didn't you?"

Mr. D. acknowledged that yes, he had always looked upon the Horsefeathers as a happily married couple. Five kids, 27 years and some 80 potted plants seemed proof enough, he observed.

"But that's just the point," Mrs. D. says. "If the potted plants were a mistake for all those years, then maybe their whole marriage was a mistake. I mean, if neither of them ever bothered to mention the potted plant mistake, then maybe they also failed to mention a lot of other things.... Mygawd, what a tragedy!"

"Don't you think you're making a big deal out of a bunch of silly potted plants?" Mr. D. asks, testily. "If Horsefeathers was crazy enough to buy them for all those years and she was crazy enough to accept them, then maybe they deserve each other." And he smiled at the wisdom of his reasoning.

"When a person thinks a lot of another person, that person might go for a lot of years putting up with something just so as not to hurt the other person," Mrs. D. says, dabbing away a tear.

Mr. D. notices her sorrow, but is reluctant to mention it. Instead, he gets up from the table, and advances toward the kitchen sink, giving Mrs. D. a squeeze as he does.

"Want me to help you with the breakfast dishes?" he asks, pleasantly.

"Why, you've never helped with the breakfast dishes in 38 years!" she exclaims.

"You never asked me to help, in 38 years," he notes.

"I guess I just like doing things for you, and that's my big problem," Mrs. D. says, and then adding, "What would you REALLY like for breakfast tomorrow?"

"Two softboiled eggs and toast, prepared in that same delicious way you've been doing them for the past 38 years," Mr. D. says, giving her a little kiss.

All of which proves that when it comes to true love, Ann Landers doesn't know Horsefeathers about boiled eggs.

EARL WATERS

Home costs

Overlooked in the scramble to aid Californians in their desires to be homeowners are the laws which have emerged both in the Legislature and at the local level and that have dammed the ability of developers to provide homes at costs which people can afford.

Great concern has been expressed over the inability of young families to acquire their own homes. This has been ascribed largely to high construction costs and property taxes. Without examining the whole picture, it is evident various proposals have been advanced to solve the problem, including a ballot measure which sought voter approval for a huge bond issue to enable the state to finance low-cost private housing.

It met defeat most likely because the voters couldn't see how the mere making available of loan money would produce low cost housing without clearing away the governmental actions which have contributed to high costs. Nevertheless, others are busily planning more even more simplistic legislative solutions.

There is no disputing that home costs are beyond the reach of most young couples. (This is a problem separate from that of the elderly on fixed incomes who are being forced out of their homes by taxation and inflated home ownership cost.)

For the young and other prospective home owners the problem is far more than taxes and direct building costs. Yet it is those facets which are stymying development even for those of sufficient income in normal conditions.

Among those burdens are state and local laws regulating subdivision developments as well as home building codes on approved lots. The environmental impact reports, building codes and countless other clearances which have become necessary to proceed with the building of a home have not only added to the costs, but weave a frustrating and seemingly hopeless web of entanglement for the individual homebuilder.

Even more depressing to home ownership are the subdivision rules resulting from "no growth" philosophies in many areas requiring anything from two to eight acres for a single family dwelling. This runs counter to "open space" efforts in the Legislature to protect agriculture and the environment; and it makes home ownership for many undesirable if not impossible.

Purchase costs aside, the maintenance of even a two - acre plot requires the elderly and everyone else except the dedicated gardener to employ help. It also defies current emphasis on water conservation.

It should be clear to local and state legislators that you can't halt the development which has eliminated some of our finest orchards by requiring every dwelling to occupy an estate. Such laws can only guarantee the eventual elimination of all farmland open space.

It should also become clear that the maize of requirements for subdivision and building, while not as monumentally dramatic as the Dow Chemical plant fiasco, are just as frustrating to the little guy who only wants shelter for his family.

COVA needed

Editor, The Times

The League of Women Voters of the Livermore-Amador Valley believe that local authorities should make a continuous effort to coordinate the activities of all agencies and jurisdictions in the area.

There is a need for an agency such as COVA to eliminate overlapping duties and responsibilities in seeking solutions to valley wide problems. It is essential to have coordination on issues of regional impact including land use planning, air quality, transportation, and social services. COVA provides a setting in which common concerns may be discussed and coherent proposals developed.

The league of women Voters of the Livermore - Amador Valley supports improved coordination and cooperation among governmental agencies. We urge its members to increase their efforts to make COVA a forum for constructive decision making. Margaret McClelland

Dr. Joyce Brothers

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: When I first married, I felt my husband was a warm, loving man who related to women and to almost all men. Twenty years have past. He's become more and more successful but he's changed. I regret to say I now think he's selfish and rather cold. Other women think I'm lucky to be married to such a big executive but I'm not so sure. What happens to men when they climb to the top? — R.T.

DEAR R.T.: I'm sure you know pressures and competition are tremendous for any man or woman who makes it to the top. Some individuals are more eager to rise than others and I'm not sure whether certain qualities that we were already there are brought out in these persons, or whether they existed to begin with and only become more evident with time.

Psychoanalyst Michael Maccoby wrote "The Gamesman," a book in which he tells the results of his six-year study of 250 middle and top managers in 12 companies. He found they fall into several broad categories: the craftsman, who seeks, and usually gets, satisfaction from work well done; the jungle fighter, who is more interested in power and dominance; and the company man, who wants security and approval.

The most common type, however, falls into still another category which Maccoby calls the gamesman. This type, he says, is usually flexible, likeable, open-minded and ambitious. He has to be a winner, and this may be at almost any cost. He thinks of John Kennedy as the model "gamesman."

The problem with the gamesman, and this may apply to your husband, is that he's become cut off from his emotions. He lacks compassion and fears emotional entanglement. You might suggest your husband read this book and see if he recognizes himself.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: Sometimes I think I'm going insane. I have such terrible dreams. My husband doesn't relieve my anxiety when he tells me that he almost never dreams and that when he does he dreams about beautiful women, all of whom adore him and want to cuddle. I don't think he's teasing either. No matter what I eat, I can't seem to rid myself of bad dreams. Do you have any solutions? — B.R.

DEAR B.R.: Don't worry so much about your sanity. Unpleasant dreams are not unusual and they are unrelated to what you eat. Dream monsters probably represent some past or current fear that bothers you, but which you push aside during the day. These fears retreat to the unconscious and make their appearance at night.

Two-thirds of all dreams are unpleasant, with elements of anger, fright, sorrow or disappointment. It's a good idea to keep a pad and pencil by your bed and write down your dreams the first thing in the morning, or even during the night when you awake from the dream. Keep a record and don't casually dismiss the dreams. If a dream repeats itself, your unconscious is trying to tell you something. Listen and learn.

If you're losing sleep, try afternoon naps. Studies show that snoozes during the day bring sweeter dreams with the result that the sleeper usually awakens refreshed.

Your husband does dream, but apparently he doesn't remember most of his dreams. Women and men generally dream for about the same amount of time but not about the same things.

Q. "WHERE DID TOMATOES ORIGINATE?"
A. SOUTH AMERICA IS THE HOME OF THE TOMATO. INDIANS OF THE ANDES MOUNTAINS GREW THEM FOR FOOD IN PREHISTORIC TIMES.

Tomatoes have been grown for centuries, but not always for food. The Indians of South America grew the tomato as food in prehistoric times. And it was being cultivated in both Central America and Mexico long before Columbus arrived.

Seeds of the tomato were taken to Europe, where the plant was at first grown as a curiosity.

The early American settlers brought tomatoes to the New World and grew them in flower gardens. It wasn't until late in the 1800s that the North Americans thought of eating the little red fruits, partly because of the belief that tomatoes were poisonous (tomatoes belong to the same family as the deadly nightshade, and the leaves and stems are toxic).

Today the tomato is a favorite food and is served in many, many ways.

By careful selection, plant breeders have produced the rich, big, juicy fruits we know today from the small, seedy specimens of the old gardens.

Varicose vein problems

DEAR DR. LAMB — I was interested in your column some time ago about jogging and varicose veins. I have been diagnosed as having chronic phlebitis and thrombophlebitis. What is the difference?

In your column you said that walking contracts the leg muscles and squeezes the deep veins in the legs to empty them. You said the superficial veins in the leg drain into the deep veins of the legs and walking helps to empty them.

Just the opposite happens to me. When I walk or stand my leg swells to about twice its normal size. I have worn an artificial leg for over 30 years but have just had this phlebitis condition for the last two years.

Can you tell me what causes the phlebitis? Could it have been brought on by favoring my artificial leg and straining my good leg? Or could it have come from falling and injuring the cartilage in my knee? I also have some foreign bodies retained from a bullet wound that went through my leg above the knee.

DEAR READER — Judging from other letters many people are confused about the difference between thrombophlebitis and varicose veins. Varicose veins are simply dilated veins, they are wide open but they are overstretched.

Phlebitis means inflammation of the veins. Thrombophlebitis means inflammation of the veins with the formation of a clot (thrombosis) in the veins. The clot may break off and send pieces through the veins to the heart and out to the lung. That is how a bloodclot develops in the lungs from the leg.

Thrombophlebitis may block the veins and cause the veins below the obstruction to dilate. Exercising will not empty the veins in the presence of thrombophlebitis because the veins are blocked and have trouble emptying. It is true that being up on your feet, even with walking, may cause the leg to swell in this condition.

The location of the clot makes a great deal of difference. If the clot is in smaller superficial veins it is less likely to cause severe swelling. But the clot may involve the deep veins in the leg and the best treatment then is to be off the leg, usually keeping the leg elevated and immobilized. Anticlotting medicines are often used. This can be a very serious disease and if a clot goes to the lung it may cause sudden death.

It has been said many times that crime doesn't pay. We stand by that adage, but must point out that a little misdirection may succeed when straightforward bidding won't.

South knew his hand was well in the slam range after North jumped to three hearts.

But he didn't want to go right into Blackwood. he was looking at three little spades and wouldn't know what to do if North showed just one ace in response. So, South decided to try a little misdirection and bid three spades.

North signed off at four hearts, but now South went into Blackwood and bid six with one ace missing.

This time crime did not pay at all. West was one of those people from Missouri. He decided not to believe South's three spade bid and led a spade up to his partner's ace. Back came the suit and South had paid a 100-point fine for speeding.

More time to work up hillside plan

PLEASANTON — Owners of a proposed development on 53 hillside acres in Mission Park got another three months from city council to modify their plan so it agrees with the city staff's vision of preserving the hill Monday night.

The vote for continuance was 3-2, with dissenters William Herlihy and Joyce LeClaire offering very strong opinions as to why there should be no continuance.

Currently the land is in single family housing and agricultural zoning and some office area; the staff has recommended a change to Planned Unit Development. The PUD zoning would enable the city to exercise strict control over the development so that there is a minimum of cut and fill in developing the hill. Discussion of development there in past years always has mentioned clustered housing on the hill to preserve its natural features.

A plan submitted earlier this month is contrary to that philosophy. It has 118 single family lots, 65 by 100 feet each on the minimum with others somewahat larger, arranged in a configuration resembling four blocks in Pleasanton Valley. The cut and fill to support such a plan apparantly would be great.

Herlihy and LeClaire took the position Monday night that the PUD, as has been stated over the past few years in discussing the hill, would assure the city maximum control over any development and why waste anymore time discussing it — let's enact it.

The majority who granted the continuance for property owner Joe Chickarella and engineer Ted Fairfield were Mayor Robert Philcox, Vice - mayor Ken Mercer and Council Member Frank Brandes.

Brandes said yesterday that he was satisfied with Planning Director Robert Harris' statement that "substantial progress" has been made between staff and developer over the past two weeks and more talks would be fruitful. Brandes feels that the lack of sewer connections will mean that the developer can't build there now anyway under his single family zoning, so there is no problem in granting the three month extension.

As an added advantage with the extension, the developer is working on bringing the whole 53 acres into a PUD, said Brandes. Previously it was thought he would leave some of the land in an agricultural zone as a way of protecting the slopes, said Brandes. The three month extension may get the whole 53 acres settled once and for all, said Brandes.

Trap shoot offers prizes

In the Bag

Do you like good, tough competition? If so, come out to the Livermore - Pleasanton Rod and Gun club on April 2 and 3. There will be a topnotch trap shoot; lots of good prizes, as well as added money.

Bring your shooting buddies, plenty of ammo (12 gauge shells will be available at the club grounds), and prepare to have a great day or two. The weather should be fine, according to our weather forecaster Manuel Mingoia, chairman of the trap club.

Practice traps will be open at 9 a.m. and competition will start at 10 sharp. PITA rules will apply. Rifle and pistol ranges will be closed during the two - day shoot. Hope to see you out there!

Del Valle Reservoir has been very popular recently with young anglers in the valley, with reports of lots of trout being taken. Various kinds of bait seems to work. One lad says, Don't use anything but big worms." Another says he likes to use a little marshmallow and very small salmon egg.

Two girls (both with sunburnt noses) had this to say, "We had more fun! Caught five trout the longest was 12¼ inches. And we also met some real nice boys!" the girls said, please, no names!

Would you like to get a good idea of the many miles of fishing country here in the Bay Area? Go to the nearest sporting goods store and get one of the several good maps of the Delta area. It may cost you $1 or 1.50, but will be well worth it.

When you catch a nice - sized fish or a limit of the same and want a picture taken, drop by Tony's Sporting Goods at 3841 First St., Livermore.

Tony has an interesting photo album of people and the fish they caught. You'll enjoy looking at the album, even if you haven't caught the whopper of the week.

Give a thought to what may happen when you see a skunk, coyote, or even a chipmunk that is acting friendly to you. These animals have a normal fear of humans, and when they become rabid they lose all fear and will come close, perhaps biting.

If bitten, try to have the animal examined for rabies. If this is impossible, see your doctor at once. Of course, it is wise to avoid coming in contact with these animals. There have been several instances of these animals around buildings near town lately — so be aware of the hazard.

Kevin Avila talked his dad Lionel, into taking him over to the Antioch pier for a bit of fishing. Kevin was really pleased when he landed a 16-inch jack smelt. But he was more excited when he hooked a big flounder' Kevin put up a good battle, but the flounder got away.

Lionel consoled him by saying, "Well, Kevin, it's always the big ones that get away!" Kevin answered, "Well, Dad, it's all right this time, but next time I'm going to be the winner!"

John Lietzke chairman of the Hunter Safety Committee, says if you wish your youngster (or even yourself) to get a California hunting license, go down to Arnew's Saddlery, 153 North L Street or Dom's Surplus at 56 North Livermore Avenue (both in Livermore) — sign - ups for the next course will be taken at either place. John will give you a call or send a card with information on dates for the next course.

The Department of Fish and Game has annouced it is proposing only limited anterless and either sex deer hunting in the state during 1977-78. Most of the hunts are pretty far south, but dedicated deer hunters don't mind traveling a few extra miles.

Changes from those hunts recommended last year deal primarily with permit quotas and dates. However, the DFG is recommending special deer hunts at Fort Hunter - Liggett and Camp Joseph Pendleton for the first time in several years.

DFG Director E. C. Fullerton said that the department is looking to its new deer management plan to help reverse the downward trends in populations and habitat.

"We feel that in all cases where we recommend hunts," Fullerton told the commission. "the quotas recommended could be taken without harm to the herds, and in most cases the hunts would be to their benefit."

Mats' Parness has no-hitter

It was almost one year ago when Granada's Bob Parness lost a no - hitter with two out in the seventh inning against Dublin High on an infield hit on the Mats' diamond.

The situation was a near Xerox copy yesterday, with just one detail altered.

Parness went all the way, hurling a no - hit, no - run 3-0 win over Dublin after pitching five innings of perfect baseball.

Pitching in front of his own fans, Parness threw smoke the first three innings and then mixed up his pitches with an effective slider in the final four stanzas to achieve the elite feat deprived of him last season.

The memory of that near - gem last year kept bugging Parness as he prepared to pitch yesterday's game, and everybody reminded him of it.

"That's the only thing I was trying to do," said Parness of his no - hitter thoughts during the game, usually a jinx to most pitchers. "Everybody was talking about last year's game all day at school.

"I figured if I could get by the first three innings with my straight stuff, I would switch to more breaking pitches. My slider was working real well."

Parness was well backed up by his defense, including two fine plays by shortstop Vance Rushing on slow rollers and gutty outfield catches by Jaryl Hudson and Bob Boyle on hard - hit line drives.

Those two hits, stroked by seventh and eighth place hitters Mark Martin and John Downing, were the only batted balls to leave the infield for the Gaels.

Parness had to face both batters in the sixth again. He fanned Martin, but John Downing drew a walk on a 3-2 pitch to break up the perfect game.

In the seventh, Parness had to go up against the 3-4-5 hitters in the Dublin lineup.

"I figured if I could get by Mays, I'd be all right," Parness noted. He added reasonably, "He was just as nervous as I was."

Parness got Mays to hit a dead roller to third - baseman Steve Cox, who fielded the ball cleanly and fired to first for the out. Bob Richardson struck out, while Mike Hardy grounded out to shortstop Vance Rushing to end the game.

Rushing was the main aggressor for the Mats at the plate, stroking a run - scoring double and single in three trips. Rushing's double off the left-field fence in the third inning drove in Hudson with the first run of the game. Hudson had singled and advanced to second on a ground out.

In the fifth, four consecutive single by Hudson, Mark Davis, Rushing and Steve Stoddard, all after two out, netted two more Granada runs and the 3-0 lead.

Granada coach Dennis Berger commented on Parness' different style this year. "I think the biggest difference with Bob this year is better control," he said. "He's developed a good off - speed pitch, and he's got confidence to throw that breaking ball."

Indeed, Parness was mainly using the slider in the late going. "I wasn't trying to strike out batters then," Parness said. "I start walking them if I do."

Berger thought Parness had it coming. "I thought he had good stuff when he shutout California," he said.

The defense was the major improvement with the Mats' game, other than Parness' pitching. "There's something wrong when you play good defense against Cal and Dublin — and shut them out — and then play bad defense against Monte Vista and give up 14 runs," Berger said in referring to Friday's 14-3 loss to the Mustangs.

As is the case in many no - hitters, the losing hurler's effort is practically overlooked. Dublin's junk - throwing Gary Rader pitched a solid effort, yielding six hits and walking just one man while striking out six batters.

The win improved the Mats' East Bay Athletic League record to 2-1, while Dublin slipped to 1-2.

Krikorian stars

Dons club Cowboys

Mike Krikorian stretched his string of innings without yielding an earned run to 21 and picked up his second straight win as the Amador Valley Dons dropped rival Livermore High School, 4-1, yesterday in Pleasanton.

The win kept the Dons within a half game of Monte Vista and, at least as importantly, saved ace Rob Wicks for Thursday's showdown with undefeated San Ramon, currently sharing second with Amador in the games-behind column.

Wicks had a full week's rest after a heart-breaking opening day loss to the league - leading Mustangs, but AV coach Don Bush went with Krikorian, who didn't allow any earned runs in his last two starts, a non-league win over Kennedy of Fremont and a 13-0 whitewash of Dublin Friday.

The stocky righthander, who finished third in last year's junior Mr. America contest, had his usual control problem, walking six batters. But he struck out seven and gave up only three hits, singles by Rick Gildea, Bob Tarte and Tim Palmer.

The Cowboys only run came in the fifth inning.

John Bachleda led off with a walk and Palmer singled and when Chris DePrater misplayed the ball for an error in center field, Bachleda came in to score.

Meanwhile, the Dons jumped on Livermore's still-winless ace Jeff Benton the first chance they got.

After Krikorian had struck out the side in the top of the first, his Amador team mates wouldn't allow Benton to even consider such a possibility.

Bill Bevilacqua led off with a ground ball single up the middle and moved around to third on a sacrifice by George Ellard and a wild pitch by Benton.

Gene Stanley drew a walk and Wicks, the league's leading hitter going into yesterday's action, lined a single into left to score Bevilacqua. That set the stage for Sam Jorgensen to rip a triple over the head of unrushing Cowboy center fielder Bachleda that cleared the bases.

Amador packed away its insurance run in its last turn on offense.

With two out, third baseman Bob Koopman walked and Mike Hoff singled into right field. DePrater then singled to left, scoring Koopman, but the mini-rally was snuffed when Tim Palmer th ew out Hoff trying to gain third base.

The Dons travel to Danville Thursday in a game moved to an earlier date in order to avoid forcing iron-man performances out of the Wolves and Dons who both play in the Verl Thornock tourney over the weekend Livermore meets Granada Friday.

Mustangs edge Cal

Responding to pressure with a grace that the Cincinnati Reds would envy, the Monte Vista Mustangs once more withstood relentless pressure from strong opposition and once more came away with a one - run victory.

Last week's victim was Amador (4-3 in eight innings), and yesterday the Mustangs eked out two runs in the bottom of the sixth to slip past Cal High and Chuck Cary 3-2.

Monte Vista's Esty Bay Athletic League record is now 3-0 and the Mustangs' hold on first place — and their number six ranking in the East Bay — is firm.

Steve Jayko and Brad Miller, who were the heroes at Amador, were once more the big men for the Mustangs, as both came up with base hits in the sixth and Miller didn't allow a single earned run.

Chuck Cary had to absorb a most depressing defeat, as he had a nohitter going through five innings and a couple of key errors cost him and the Grizzlies the ball game. Cal High is now 0-2 in EBAL play, and has s tough row to hoe to get back in the race.

And the way Monte Vista is responding to pressure isn't going to make it any easier. The Mustangs had several opportunites to fold their tents and quietly slip away but refused to buckle.

For example, Cal led off the top of the seventh with a line drive pinch single by Doug Smith. After pinch runner John Mattson was forced at second by Brett Cary, the Cal coaching staff — Bob Benatar and Ed Noble — decided to test MV catcher Mike Cockerton's arm. They sent the elder Cary off to steal second so that the tying run would be in scoring position.

However, Cockerton gunned a perfect throw to second base that had Cary by a good ten feet and Jayko made sure the tag was there. Miller, buoyed by the fine throw, struck out Larry Walters two pitches later and the Mustangs had the game.

It was never easy for Monte Vista, as Cal jumped off to a 1-0 lead in the first. Walters walked, moved to second on a passed ball and scored when Chuck Cary bounced a single up the middle.

The Mustangs tied the score in the second after Ken Krey walked. He then stole second, the first of eight stolen bases for Monte Vista. After a walk to Miller put runners on first and second, Tony Adams rolled a grounder to Walters at short, who flipped to Mark Fahey at second for the force. However Fahey's throw to first to try to complete the double play was wide and Krey came in to score.

SR nips Falcons

Despite a brillant pitching performance from Rick Rosenbach the Foothill Falcons fell to visiting San Ramon, 2-0 in a East Bay Athletic League baseball game yesterday.

Rosenbach hurled nine strikeouts, allowed six hits and walked but one batter but the Wolf pitching duo of starter Guy Houston and Tom Millner was just as effective.

Houston went the first four innings, allowing one hit, walking none and striking out eight. Millner went the remaining three innings, gave up one hit, two walks and fanned three batters.

The Wolves, now 2-0 in EBAL play, struck for single runs in the second and fourth inning to nail down the victory.

Mitch Racano started off the inning with a single, stole second and after John Arnaudon fanned, came in on Mike Wallace's single.

San Ramon tallied again in the fourth on two long belts. Rascano, with one out, smashed a triple to right field and scored on Arnaudon's double to left.

San Ramon got one more hit, that coming in the sixth.

After Rascano and Arnaudon grounded out Wallace singled. However, Charlie Brice, who was outstanding defensively all day, flied to center to end the threat.

No Foothill runner advanced beyond second base, that coming in the sixth when Pat Geck singled to open the inning and was sent to second on Sam Sisneroz's sacrifice. However, Dan Wilkes and Virgil Ridge flied and grounded out to end the Falcon threat.

Ruscano and Wallace each had two hits for the winners. San Ramon left six runners on base.

Daley sparks Granada girls

DANVILLE — Arlene Daley won three distance events as the Granada High School girls track team rolled to a 74-35 win over San Ramon here yesterday.

The Matador boys fell to SR, 75-63.

Daley won the 880 in 2:27, the mile in 5:44 and the two mile in 12:02.5. Team mate Patty Hannon took the shot put in 29-5 and finished second in the high jump.

For the boys, Andy Heath won the 330 low hurdles in 39.8 and took third in the 220. The Mats won the 440 relay in 45 flat while Jeff Cowlings won the mile in 4:42 and finished second to Wolf Brett Baffert's 10:04 in the two-mile.

The meet was a make-up of an earlier rain-out. The Mats travel to Amador for a regularly scheduled meet Thursday while San Ramon meets Foothill on the Dublin High School track.

Joe Namath Ram-bound?

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Quarterback Joe Namath of the New York Jets will become a member of the Los Angeles Rams within two weeks — and it won't cost the Rams anything to get him beyond his cut-rate salary, The Associated Press learned Tuesday.

"If the Jets were to get anything for Namath from the Rams, it would be in the form of a gift from Carroll Rosenbloom to Leon Hess," said a highly placed source on the Rams. He was referring to the principal owners of the two National Football League teams.

Thus the Rams will not trade to get Namath and any deal to bring the gimpy - kneed 33 - year - old quarterback from New York to Los Angeles won't be consummated before the NFL meetings end here Friday, the source said.

The Jets have been hoping to acquire a player or draft choice from the Rams in exchange for Namath. But the source indicated the Rams are unwilling to gamble away a player or draft choice on a quarterback who, because of his fragile legs, may not be able to give Los Angeles much playing time.

The Rams' apparent No. 1 quarterback is young Pat Hayden.

It was Namath who led the Jets to a 16-7 victory over the Baltimore Colts in Super Bowl III in 1969, a triumph which gave the old American Football League instant respectability. But since 1970, Namath has not been able to provide the Jets with winning football.

The Jets, committed to a rebuilding program led by quarterback Richard Todd, a 1976 rookie out of Namath's alma mater of Alabama, are unwilling to assume the option year of Namath's contract in 1977. Were they to do so, it would cost them an estimated $495,000.

Under the recently approved collective bargaining agreement, the Jets would have to pay 110 per cent of Namath's previous year's salary, reportedly $450,000.

Last week, Namath's lawyer, Jimmy Walsh, indicated his client was willing to take a vast pay cut in order to play for the Rams — a move which would put Namath next door to the television and motion picture industries and help him regain that lost portion of his football salary.

Barr signs

Indians top SF

PHOENIX — The San Francisco Giants signed righthanded pitcher Jim Barr to a two-year contract Tuesday, leaving shortstop Chris Speier as the only dissatisfied frontline player on the team.

Speier has signed a one-year, $90,000 contract for the coming baseball season but could become a free agent at the end of the year. He is seeking a multi-year contract for a lot more money and Giants co-owner Bob Lurie said on Monday, "I think we'll be able to sign everybody except Speier."

Barr signed for an undisclosed amount. The 29 - year - old pitcher was 15-12 last year with a 2.89 earned run average. Cleveland's Bill Melton, leading off the fifth inning, hit his sixth home run of the exhibition baseball season Tuesday and Duane Kuiper delivered a tworun single in the seventh inning to give the Indians a 6-4 victory over the Giants.

The Giants' Lynn McGlothen held the Indians scoreless through five innings but gave up five runs over the next two innings. Cleveland scored three times in the sixth, with one run coming on Jim Norris' triple.

The Giants came back with three runs in the bottom of the sixth to take a 4-3 lead. Their first run came on Willie McCovey's RBI double in the fifth.

In the seventh, Frank Duffy singled, Dave LaRoche reached base on an error by San Francisco third baseman Vic Harris, Rick Manning sacrificed and Kuiper singled.

Randy Elliott of the Giants had a double and single in his only two at-bats, raising his batting average to an amazing .659. The outfielder has 25 hits in 38 at-bats.

AV edges Gaels

Despite an impressive performance from Chuck Gangnuss the Dublin High track tram fell to Amador 71-64 yesterday in East Bay Athletic League competition.

Gangnuss won the 330-yard low hurdles in 39.1 and the 120-yard highs in 14.3, a seasonal best. He also ran a strong leg on the Gael 440-yard relay team which won in 44.2.

However, the Dons' depth prevailed and they dominated the field events.

Bruce Roberts led the United States to an 8-5 victory over France in the opening round of the 10th World Curling Championships in Karlstad, Sweden.

Six of the 12 National League teams will have new managers this season.

Glenn Davis, who holds Army career records for yards rushing, total yards gained and scoring, also holds the Cadet career record for interceptions with 14.

Tough row for Giants

(This is the second of two articles on prospects for the Oakland A's and San Francisco Giants, based on their performances to date at their spring training headquarters in Mesa and Phoenix, Arizona.)

Though the talent is considerably better than their cross-bay rivals in Oakland, the Giants will probably not fare any better in the standings.

The A's are being pegged anywhere from third to sixth in the American League-West, most likely fourth or fifth. Tab the Giants for the same finish.

The Giants' wider swath of talent is counter - balanced by the fact they're in the toughest division in the Major Leagues — Cincinnati, Los Angeles and improving San Diego and Houston.

At this time last year, the Giants' franchise was about to be boxed and shipped to Toronto. Then along came Bob Lurie and Bud Herseth.

The honeymoon lasted for a few weeks, until the realities of relative talent, a blase home city and skipper Bill Rigney clamped their incisors on the club.

Vast changes have been made on the field and in the dugout, not the least of which were the departure of Rigney, Bobby Murcer, Garry Matthews, Dave Rader, Wildman D'Acquisto and Kenny Reitz.

What the Giants got in exchange is not going to excite San Franciscans. The field is still a carpet and the wind still blows. Box seats are now $5 a copy and the Reds and Dodgers have yet to fall over of old age.

If, as Charley Finley has said, the A's are the team of 1980, then the Giants are the team of about 1979. Only difference is, the A's won't be in Oakland in 1980 ... or in 1978.

The Giants might be.

Playing part of their schedule in the Coliseum and the bulk of it as always at Candlestick Park.

New skipper Joe Altobelli and Italian Stallion John "The Count" Montefusco are the cornerstone of a solid franchise whose main problem now is regenerating interest throughout the Bay Area.

Montefusco will again be opening day pitcher when the Giants battle Los Angeles April 8. The remainder of the rotation, one of the best in the National League, includes a still-unsigned Jim Barr, former Cardinal Lynn McGlothen, and tall Ed Halicki.

What the Giants sorely need is a strong lefthander. John Curtis came over from St. Louis in the Dave Rader deal but is marginal and may windup in long relief. Other lefties on the team are ace reliever Gary Lavelle and Frank Riccelli. Randy Moffitt and Charley Williams add veteran bullpen aid.

Altobelli has been switching players between positions all spring, a procedure he says will give him greater flexibility.

Lost in the shuffle was Chris Speier, who's holding out for a zillion dollars on the strength of a .226 average and a tarnished glove.

Speier may yet windup in Seattle, Atlanta or Cucamonga. Meanwhile, shortstop will be played by Johnny Lemaster or truculent Derrel Thomas.

Third base is the domain of Bill Madlock. Second base will be manned by Thomas (if Lemaster gets the nod at short), just-acquired Rob Andrews (from Houston) or rookie Tom Heintzelman.

Willie McCovey is still trying to prove that life goes on at 39 and may get the first base assignment. We hope not. The Giants would do better by signing Willie up as batting coach.

Darrel Evans is the most viable candidate at first, backed by the faulty glove of Gary Thomasson.

The outfield is young, fast and strong ... reading left to right with Yankee reject Terry Whitfield, Larry Herndon and Jack Clark. They're backed by Thomasson and this spring's Bionic Man — Randy Elliott. And would anyone like to wager that precocious Randy won't be batting his weight by September!

Behind the plate are salt and pepper, Marc Hill and Gary Alexander, to give the Giants adequate backstopping.

If Altobelli gets this club to third he deserves a million dollar, no-fire contract. If he gets them to fourth they should name a street in North Beach after him.

NFL votes for more games

PHOENIX — The National Football League voted Tuesday to expand its regular season to 16 games and to add two wild card playoff teams for the 1978 season.

The NFL also voted that, effective 1978, the Seattle Seahawks will be permanently placed in the American Conference's West Division and the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, the league's other 1976 expansion team, will become a part of the National Conference's Central Division.

Wide-open race seen in junior loop

They're all talking about how the California Angels may have bought themselves a divisional title along with their free agents.

They're talking about how the Kansas City Royals have established themselves as the team to beat simply because nobody in the division beat them to the top a year ago.

They're talking about how the restocked Texas Rangers may be ready to make their move, or how the Minnesota Twins have kids with real potential, or how the Oakland A's aren't really all that bad despite the superstar exodus, or ...

It's all talk — and it all points to the clear fact that nothing's clear in the American League West this year. With the exception of the Chicago White Sox and the expansion Seattle Mariners, nobody seems to have been written off. In other words, nobody seems to know what's going to happen. And that makes for pennant races.

Gene Autry's money has certainly given the Angels a shot in the arm and his acquisitions — Joe Rudi, Bobby Grich and Don Baylor — give them a shot at their first winning season since 1970, the last time they finished as high as third.

With Rudi, a healthy Bobby Bonds and a developing Bruce Bochte, California is certainly sound in the outfield. The infield, though, leaves some questions.

Beyond Grich, a shortstop with unusual power, the Angels don't seem all that settled. It could be Baylor at first base and Tony Solaita as the designated hitter, or it could be the other way around. Ron Jackson at third and Jerry Remy at second have yet to pitch in with consistent production.

Half a dozen men, including Andy Etchebarren and Terry Humphrey, are scrambling for the catching job. Whoever wins it will catch some pretty good pitchers — and some pretty questionable ones, too.

Frank Tanana, 19-10 with a .244 earned-run average last year, seems to have swiped the "ace" label from Nolan Ryan. The fireballing Ryan is still a threat to strike out everybody and throw a no-hitter each time he starts. But he's also still a threat to ruin himself with wildness and sore arms. It all happened last year. Ryan won 17 games and had a league-high 327 strikeouts and seven shutouts. He also had a league-high 18 losses and 183 walks to go along with his 3.36 ERA.

Beyond those two are young pitchers like Paul Hartzell and Don Kirkwood with promise but, as yet, no production.

The Royals, the oddsmakers say, are co-favored with California. Kansas City lost 15-game winner Al Fitzmorris to Cleveland and got 15-game loser Jim Colborn from Milwaukee, but perhaps that's not as bad as it sounds. Consider the teams they played for. Kansas City won 24 more games than Milwaukee. And the pitchers' earned-run averages weren't that far apart. And Colborn is more of a strikeout pitcher. So it might be an evenup swap in the long run.

And one man does not make up a rotation. Kansas City's still got most of the men who gave the Royals the second-best staff in the league — Paul Splittorff, Marty Pattin, Steve Mingori, Doug Bird and Dennis Leonard. And if Steve Busby is healthy again, that's a major shot in the arm.

When the Royals got Colborn, they also got Darrell Porter, who could strengthen the catching. The rest of the field remains pretty sound with players like George Brett, John Mayberry, Fred Patek, Amos Otis and Hal McRae. New arrivals Pete LaCock from the Chicago Cubs and Bob Heise from Boston may chip in.

The Rangers, a lot of people believe, built themselves the nucleus of an improved team in the massive deal that sent Jeff Burroughs to Atlanta. Ken Henderson, one of the former Braves, will replace him in right field, and will probably supply just about as much power at the plate.

Dave May, an outfielder with potential punch, and Carl Morton, Roger Moret and Adrian Devine, a trio of respectable pitchers, were the others in the trade.

If help has really arrived, though, it'll probably be from free-agent shortstop Bert Campaneris, outfielder Claudell Washington and pitchers Paul Lindblad and Doyle Alexander. Campaneris' arrival permits Toby Harrah to move into a more comfortable slot at third. Those two changes should settle down an infield that gave up errors by the bushels.

Minnesota's got its own nucleus, and a fairly young one, in pitchers Pete Redfern and Eddie Bane, catcher Butch Wynegar, infielders Mike Cubbage and Ray Smalley and outfielder Dan Ford. But that pitching may have been severely damaged by the departure of relief ace Bill Campbell to Boston. Campbell was the Twins' workhorse and by far their most effective hurler, amassing 17 victories and 20 saves. He'll be hard to replace.

It would, at first glance, seem impossible to replace all the talent that fled Charlie Finley's A's. Oakland, only a few years ago the newest applicant for recognition as a dynasty, is now rated by the experts as a rank outsider.

It certainly doesn't look rosy for new Manager Jack McKeon — but then it may not be all that bleak, either.

The team didn't lose any starters. Vida Blue and Mike Torrez are two solid ones, Mike Norris and Paul Mitchell may be ready to emerge and Joe Coleman and Doc Medich will almost surely help out. The departure of Rollie Fingers and Lindblad had to hurt — but not so much, considering Dave Giusti's arrival. Catcher Manny Sanguillen will give that staff a boost. So will his bat.

A few of last year's big names are still there — like Blue, Torrez, and outfielder Bill North. And if Dick Allen can concentrate on baseball instead of controversy, he may give Oakland a massive infusion of confidence. Also aboard is catcher - first basemen Earl Williams, picked up from Montreal.

The new names like Tommy Sandt, Derek Bryant, Ray Cossey and Dennis Walling are meaningless now. But one never knows what kinds of gloves and bats are lurking in those young prospects.

Bob Lemon is Chicago's new mamager. What he's got to work with isn't much. Will pitcher Wilbur Wood make it back from a broken kneecap? Will Eric Soderholm. formerly of the Twins, come back from a completely inactive season, also due to a bad knee? Will Richie Zisk bring from Pittsburgh a potent bat? There are an awful lot of questions. The answer seems to be that it'll take an awful lot of comebacks to bring the White Sox back to respectability.

Respectability is one thing Seattle doesn't have to look forward to. As in all expansions, an occasional decent name crops up on a roster of players who are either over the hill or haven't even started to climb it.

Old-fashioned fun is aim of SR melodrama

Entertainment is the name and melodrama is our name, says the San Ramon Conservatory Theatre. Rehearsals for their fifth annual production, "No Opera at the Op'ry House Tonight," by Tim Kelly, have begun at the Veteran's Building in Danville.

The first of the four weekend performances is slated for Friday, April 15 and Saturday, April 16, with tickets selling for $2.50 and $3 per person. Group rates are available.

Although the melodrama is old-fashioned in nature, it's written with a fast contemporary flair to match the maneuvering of that foul villain Baron Wolfgang von Wolfpack, played by Paul Carozza. The plot unfolds with the antics of everyone from a lady sheriff to a notorious confidence woman getting a piece of the action.

For more information call Audrey Noh at 837-4477 or Billie Tipton at 828-3516 (evenings).

Sing along

A prospective chapter of Sweet Adelines, Inc. is meeting now at John Knox Presbyterian Church, 7421 Amarillo Road in Dublin, on Tuesdays at 7:30 p.m. An international women's singing group interested in preserving four-part barbershop harmony, Sweet Adelines seeks new members from throughout the valley.

For more details call Sue Cramer at 828-0787, Lynn Uriarte at 828-6792 or Gen McMillan at 846-5620.

Bigtime pro here

Due to a limited number of reserved seats, valley residents are urged to buy their $7.50 tickets to the May 22 Mel Tillis concert now by mailing a check to the Livermore Rotary, Box 694, Livermore, CA 94550. General admission tickets are $6. The country - western entertainer will perform at a 2 p.m. concert at Livermore Stadium with his Statesiders Band, and the concert will also feature Jody Miller.

Music binds father and son

Don Vaca and his son, Don, will combine musical talents on jazz piano and drum to entertain guests of the Valley Performing Arts Company this weekend.

There's a special rapport between a father and son who find time to enjoy playing together the music that means so much to them both.

Don Vaca and his son, also a Don, will transform their favorite pasttime into a public pleasure when they entertain at the April 1 introduction to the Valley Peforming Arts Company. Father and son will play in a jazz combo, following performances by a string quartet of the Livermore - Amador Symphony and skits by members of "The Company."

The public is invited to come and meet "The Company," learn about its future plans in the valley, and enjoy the free entertainment April 1 from 8 to 10:30 p.m. at the Pleasanton Aquatic Center on Black Avenue. "The Company" and a host of other entertainers will welcome new supporters at The Livermore Veterans Building April 2 from 8 to 10:30 p.m., and at Shannon Community Center in Dublin April 3 from 3 to 5 p.m.

Vaca, originally from New Orleans, has music in his blood and talents which belie his offhand comments on his musical past. He, too, played in a band with his father in the Forties, and has also learned to play the piano by ear as did his father.

His initial interest in the trumpet put him in Al Hirt's place as a stand-in one evening and Don played trumpet behind Jose Greco. He married a petite gal, Jan, who is amazingly adept at the drums. (She's better known about town as manager of The Wildflower boutique.)

Not surprisingly, Don's favorite medium is modern jazz, but he frequently puts in a stint as a popular entertainer at local social gathering — recently the Rotary Club's crab feed — and weddings. He still remembers with pleasure the time he scored an entire musical production while stationed at White Sands, New Mexico at the military missile base there.

Vaca is an electrical engineer at Sandia who plans to teach a course in "Automatic Controls" at Chabot College, and also manages to handle bookkeeping for his wife's boutique.

Young Don, the only one of five young Vacas to inherit the family's musical aptitude, has studied the drums several years. He'll appear with the Granada stage band in concert March 31. Young Don hopes to pick up the bass guitar and trombone.

The two Vacas both played backup at for Festival '76 singers last fall, and found the musical experience — as always — very rewarding.

Valley Performing Arts Company invites everyone interested in the theatre arts, whether you be a performer or casual theatregoer, to the group's first-ever extravaganza this Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

VPAC, or "The Company," is presenting its membership/ fund raising gala Friday from 8 to 10:30 p.m. at the Aquatic Center on Black Avenue in Pleasanton, from 8 to 10 p.m. Saturday at the Veterans Hall in Livermore and 3 to 5:30 p.m. Sunday at Shannon Park Community Center in Dublin.

This valley - wide group can only be as strong and influential as its membership, notes president Gil Maines, who has been instrumental in forming it along with Mel Chew, Fred and Marie Cochran, Diane and Larry Kaher, and Bev Hamlin.

The initial production is slated for June at the Dublin High Little Theatre. "Carnival" is the choice of the group ... and its a great one. The production is one of the most popular in stage musical annals and will appeal to the entire family.

Tryouts are forthcoming in a few weeks.

You can learn more about The Company and how you can help assure year-round theatre here by coming out to any one of the extravaganzas this Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Of course we would hope you would become a member (Just $5 for a membership), patron or benefactor.

It costs to put on good theatre, whether it be a stage musical like "Carnival", dance productions or concerts.

Every measure of support, whether as a member, patron, performer, or backstage craftsman, will be appreciated.

The County Fair Association has announced another stellar lineup for the Amphitheatre this summer, topped by singer - guitarist Fydie Fender, comedian John Biner and, possibly award-winning composer, singer and guitarist Jose Feliciano. Coming back for a second time is the popular comedy team of Skiles and Henderson.

Admission policies remain unchanged, the front gate admission is all you need to see the show in the Amphitheatre.

The community hour shows in the Court of 4 Seasons will have a different format, however. Instead of all the junior and senior division acts being judged, all youngsters will receive certificates of appreciation and the judging aspect will be eliminated.

Needs survey for Donlon released

The Donlon School facilities assessment needs committee has recommended the Murray School District install movable walls in one of the pods at the school.

Over 400 persons responding and 90 per cent of the Donlon staff responding to a survey also favored a multi-purpose room and a separate library.

The survey was reviewed by Murray school board members and about 45 parents and teachers Monday night at Donlon School.

On one of the statements — "An activity room or portable should be available for use such as for physical education, music, drama, etc.," 89 percent of residents responded agreed that such a facility should be provided for at Donlon.

Seventy-two percent of the Donlon staff "strongly agreed" that such a facility was needed.

The audience and board members took a brief tour of the pod, where streamers had been placed to indicate where the committee believes walls should be placed.

The walls would leave A Pod with an open area in the middle of some 2,500 square feet. The class areas in each corner of the pod would be separated by a movable wall.

At present, classes are separated only by book shelves, desks and files. Some teachers believe the lack of a wall makes it impossible to moderate noise and movement.

On the statement regarding a multi-purpose room, 75 per cent of the community responses favored building of such a facility. However, barely a quarter of the staff was in agreement.

Asked if the library should be moved into a classroom space within the pod(s), 70 per cent of the staff agreed while Donlon parents were generally split — 50 per cent agreeing.

Some 58 per cent per cent of the staff and 67 per cent of the community feel the reading center should be moved into a classroom space within the pod(s).

An overwhelming percentage of both staff and parents felt that school specialists should have classroom or portable space. Specialists would include learning disability grouping teacher, resource teacher, counselor, speech clinician, reading specialist, and psychologist.

Cost estimates for putting in the movable walls is pegged at between $58,000 and $60,000.

Business manager Darrell Carter said later it would be much cheaper to put in permanent walls.

Estimated cost of building a multi-purpose facility is $379,160.

Further action on the report is expected at the April board meetings. The board will hold its annual reorganization meeting April 11 at Fallon School at 8 p.m.

Honor students

Twelve and involved

LIVERMORE — Twelve years old is not too young to belong to an honor society and participate in community services.

There are 123 "beautiful young people" doing just that at Mendenhall Intermediate School, according to vice principal Gerald Stunkel.

The students, headed by officers Heidi VanDyke, Jill Clary, Rachel Stallkamp and Julie Kumpf, belong to the California Junior Scholarship Federation (CJSF). It takes nearly a straight "A" average to qualify for the honor society.

"They are not concerned solely with books, however," says Stunkel, "as demonstrated by the wide variety of school and community service projects which they have undertaken, and the many social activities they have sponsored. These have ranged from Christmas collections for the less fortunate and visits to convalescent hospitals, painting and yard work improvement projects on the campus, doing recycling and walkathons to pizza and swimming parties, ski trips, bowling and outings to Great America, Santa Cruz and Warriors' games.

Besides the four officers mentioned above, CJSF members at Mendenhall include:

Girl Scout Month

More to it than cookies

DUBLIN — Besides selling cookies, Girl Scouts get to travel to other countries, perform valuable services to their community, learn skills and do lots more, according to Nancy Larson, Chairman of South San Ramon Association of Girl Scouts.

March is International Girl Scout month. They celebrated their 75th anniversary this year.

Four girls of different ages, who are affiliated with Larson's association, explained some of the things they do.

Karen Ernest is a Senior Girl Scout in Troop Four. Seniors are in grades nine through 12.

"We can work on community activities and obtain A-bars (aid-bars) for services we provide. Seniors are the only group able to work for A-bars," Ernest said. "We also have the chance to apply for international opportunities. I was given one and am going to Finland."

Ernest said it was a long process to apply for an international opportunity and be selected by various councils.

Larson said Senior Girl Scouts are a big help to leaders of other scout age groups.

"They begin to feed back the time and effort that has been put into them," Larson said.

Jennifer Allison spoke in behalf of the Cadet level which includes seventh and eighth graders. She is in Troop 714.

"We have to meet challenges that are presented to us by leaders," Allison said. "Sometimes they are unknown challenges given to a group; sometimes to individuals. We can also earn a first aid badge, learn social dependability and emergency preparedness. We are allowed to apply for international opportunities too."

Susan Pollmeyer of Troop 1673 represented the Junior Girl Scouts. They attend grades four through six.

Pollmeyer was the champion cookie seller this year in the San Ramon area. She sold 207 boxes.

"Mint was the most popular flavor," she said.

She explained a Junior Girl Scout gets her first opportunity to earn badges. And they get to go to summer camp.

"This year we are going to get to make a trip to Great America since our troop won the cookie award."

Kristin Larson of Troop 1730 is in the Brownie category. First and third graders can belong to this group.

"We learn camp skills, first aid, how to tie knots and get to earn patches," Kristin said.

There is a display of crafts, uniforms and information about Girl Scouts at the Dublin Public Library. Chairman, Nancy Larson said any girl interested in joining Girl Scouts should call her at 828-6132.

NASHVILLE (AP) — Billy Carter, beer - drinking brother of the President, turned 40 years old today and came to this country music capital to celebrate his birthday.

Unlike many country music devotees who come to Nashville, Carter says he has no plans to start a singing career.

"I do not plan on singing no damn where," he said Monday. "I plan on drinking beer and keep living."

Carter, sitting near a washtub filled with cans of beer and a pail filled with peanuts, told reporters he plans to make the rounds of country music places here — part of it with country music star Tom T. Hall, who wrote and sings, "I Like Beer."

LONDON (AP) — Doctors have fitted British actor Peter Sellers with an electronic pacemaker to make his heart be regularly, according to British press reports.

The 51-year-old star collapsed aboard a jetliner March 20, on the way back to London after a honeymoon on the French Riviera with his fourth wife. He claimed he had been poisoned by spoiled oysters.

The Daily Mail and The Sun said Sellers was fitted with the tiny battery-powered pacemaker at London's Charing Cross hospital March 21.

Sellers is known for his roles in such movies as "Dr. Strangelove" and "The Pink Panther."

Daily Mail columnist Nigel Dempster said Sellers has since returned to his new house near St. Tropez in the south of France with 22-year-old actress Lynne Frederick, whom he married five weeks ago.

His previous three marriages ended in divorce.

LAS PALMAS, Canary Islands (AP) — Prince Charles, son of Queen Elizabeth, flew into Las Palmas' Gando Military Airport on his way back home from Africa, with himself at the controls.

He was greeted by top-ranking local officials at the airport Monday.

The plane did not fly the royal flag, apparently in mourning for the air accident at nearby Tenerife airport, in which more than 500 persons were killed.

Passover celebrates the release from Egyptian bondage of the Jewish people over 3000 years ago. Under Moses' leadership, the Jewish people baked their unleavened loaves of bread (Matza) and escaped into the desert from the Pharoah's troops. Because of their deliverance, Jews are asked to dedicate themselves to the liberation of all peoples from enslavement and oppression.

Special foods, such as the unleavened bread, Matzah, and bitter herbs are consumed and their significance is explained at the Seder. Children and adults sit together to enjoy a festival spirit including much discussion and singing.

In the family Seder, the father reads from the Hagaddah, the book of history, and everyone samples symbolic foods, and drinks symbolic glasses of wine. An extra wine goblet is filled to the brim to await the prophet Elijah, who, according to tradition, visits each Jewish home on seder night.

In recent years, a new tradition has been added. A special prayer is read in behalf of the Jews in the Soviet Union, who are still prevented from practicing their religion.

At Passover it is an honor and a duty to invite strangers to share the feast. In earlier times the door was left open as an invitation for "all who are hungry to come in and partake."

Irish peace trip heads Presbyterian program

DUBLIN — Mary Huenink, a nationally prominent Presbyterian leader who recently visited Ireland for a week, along with 106 other religious leaders, will speak before a meeting of the Women's Fellowship of John Knox United Presbyterian Church on today at 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. Huenink and the religious leaders, representing Catholic, Protestant and Jewish organizations in the United States and Canada, spent a week in Ireland, visiting and meeting in the homes of people in Dublin, Belfast and Londonderry, who are working for an end to the violence which has troubled that country for the past seven years.

The trip was called a "Journey of Reconciliation" and was climaxed by participation in a peace march and rally. Nearly 15,000 marchers came from both the North and the South of Ireland, and met on the new Bridge of Peace which crosses the River Boyne at Drogheds. There they were joined by other peace marchers from North America, Australia and many European countries.

The talk will be about the "Journey of Reconciliation" and about what is happening in Ireland today. The public is welcome to attend.

Zucchini special

Lori Abert, reporter for Livermore's Del Arroyo 4-H Club, serves mom Carol at a recent brunch the 4-H group held honoring their mothers. Hosted by "The Zucchini Lady," Maxine Plastino, the brunch featured an entire menu planned around — you guessed it — zucchini. The floral arrangement on the table is held in Mrs. Plastino's 400th vegetable creation, a zucchini vase!

Contra Costa seeks answer to combat runoff pollution

MARTINEZ — Even in a year of drought, pollution problems can be created by the runoff of rainwaters and the public is being invited by the Contra Costa Planning Department to help devise a surface runoff plan.

Anyone interested in assisting with the Contra Costa portion of the plan is invited to attend a series of meetings. The first will be at 2 p.m., Thursday, March 31 in the Board of Supervisors Chambers, county administration building, Pine and Escobar streets, Martinez.

Persons planning to attend or wishing to be notified of further meetings should call Katherine Robinson in the county planning department at 372-2035.

In a dry year, according to county planners, the first flow of storm waters carries an accumulation of soil particles, wastes, pesticides, chemicals, oil and grease along streams into bays and rivers. Surface runoff contributes well over half the total heavy metal load (such as lead) discharged into bay waters.

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) requires that the general public participate in surface runoff planning, along with governmental institutions, pollutant dischargers and public interest groups.

Farm and grazing area runoff will be considered as well as urban runoff.
